Developing Language and Communication Skills

Activity Report

Introduction:

According to the changing scenario of the life and learning, there are various innovative subjects and activities being introduced in higher educational institutions. Hence we have introduced the Developing Language and Communication Skill (DLCS) to the English language learning students. These soft skills are the character traits and interpersonal skills that characterize a person's ability to interact effectively with others. In the workplace, soft skills are considered to be a complement to hard skills, which refer to a person's knowledge and occupational skills. Psychologists may use the term "soft skills" to describe someone's emotional intelligence quotient (EIQ) as opposed to intelligence quotient (IQ). In a competitive labour market, individuals who demonstrate that they have a good combination of hard and soft skills often enjoy a greater demand for their services. Communication skills are also important for the success of most employers. In the present context, every job requires employees to engage with consumers in some way or other. Students need to master the verbal skills to compete the world. The very objective behind beginning this practice is to strengthen the competence of the students learning in the college irrespective of their discipline and subject.

Objectives:

Following are the objectives behind introducing the skill to students:

1. To Develop Communication Skills: To develop communication skills among the new English learners. This means develop and demonstrate student's ability to communicate effectively with others and to build the capacity for teamwork.
2. To Cultivate Critical Thinking: To Cultivate critical thinking among the students. This consists of the student's ability to generate constructive solutions to problems that arise by demonstrating sufficient problem-solving skills.
3. To Demonstrate Reliability and Accountability: This includes completing tasks on time by demonstrating adequate organizational task completion and time management skills among the new learners.
4. To Engage in Listening: To demonstrate how to apply active listening skills and to discuss and debate with each other in the college environment.
5. To Develop Humble Characters: This means being able to identify ways to treat others with dignity and respect.

Nature of Activity/Practice:

The department of English runs various activities throughout of the year. The faculties from the department of English are enthusiast in developing the spoken communications in English. 'The Study Circle' of the department works under the students' leadership, where the interested students from the department and other departments actively participates in the programmes. The department also invite guest faculties from the neighbouring colleges to deliver speeches regarding various topics of English language and communication. The present course is fully practical, where all the learners should take part in every fortnight activity and put his or her views on given topics before the teachers and students of the course. This activity is being run during 2019-20 and 2023-24. Due to Covid pandemic, the activity wasn't in practice. It was satisfactory response from the students, where they dare to stand and express themselves which boosts their confidence.
