Preface

The main emphasis in the book is on topic related to pollution, biodiversity, agriculture, environmental education and related laws, covid-19 pandemic, their effects on humans and environment. The authors have tried their best to glean the latest and to present it in as lucid and logical a manner as possible to discussed and put their views on various issues related to the theme and sub-themes of the book. The subject matter has been interwoven for keeping up the interest and curiosity of the readers.

It is hoped that this edited book will be useful for all the students, researchers and faculty members from colleges and universities. Also book will ultimately serve to develop in the readers a proper concern for our deterioration environment and encourage them to become actively involved in matters related to the environment.

Though meticulous care has been taken in compiling and printing of the research articles, some mistakes might have crept in. We, therefore, close with a request to all who may read this book that they may feel free to pass on to us, comments or suggestions that they may have, so that we might improve our future editions.
