Dr. Kalyn Gangarde (MGEWS, Parbhani) stated objectives behind the organization of this virtual conference in his introductory speech.

During inaugural speech professor Gavhane said that human life is affected by Science and technology. Human beings are getting developed and they believe that they are controller of the word. Due to their grid to achieve more they are destroying nature very badly. Hence education is the best tool to introduce culture among the people specially value education must be the part of education system.

Prof. Gavhane said that human being must learn from the surrounding environment. He must learn from birds, trees, mountains, rivers etc. Each and every component of the nature gives nice message from which human must learn which will be helpful to analyse culture of the society.

In keynote address Professor K. S. Ramesh delivered speech on 'Reassessment of life culture and education in the context of COVID-19 pandemic'. During his talk Professor Ramesh highlighted on pandemic and its impacts. He also stated that during modernization human has diverted from the nature. Hence there is time to rethink and reassess about relationship with nature, relationship with our traditional knowledge system, relationship with non human and It's time to think how to replenish the earth not just extract form it. Finally Prof. Ramesh told that we must rethink that how science will be free from politics hence it will be more nature friendly and more useful to the human being.

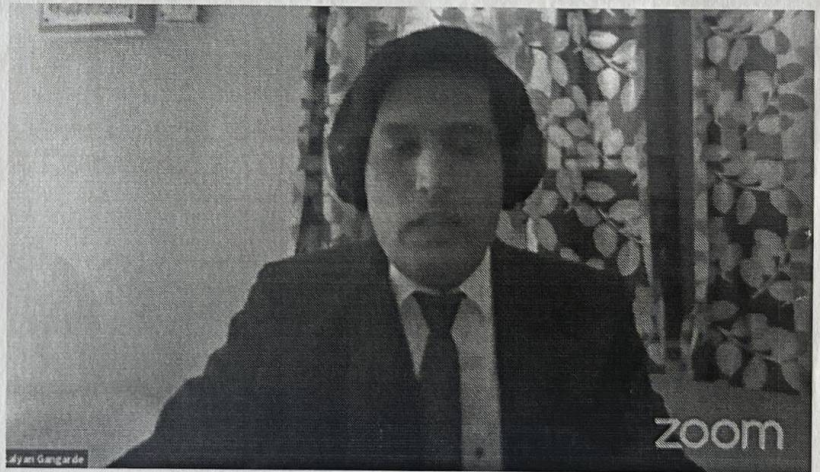

Dr. R. T. Bedre chairperson of the session highlighted on 'Impact of COVID-19 pandemic on the education' during his speech Dr. Bedre stated that during pandemic various educational activities were run which can be mainly categorised into-- COVID-19 awareness quizzes, Online teaching and E-content development and Academic webinars and conferences.

Dr. Bedre said that out of these three, Awareness campaign or quizzes are not reaching to the target groups but these are only run by the institutions as a part of their activities. Same thing is there in case of online teaching and E-content development workshop or FDPs which are done by number of faculties but still there is doubt whether these courses will be counted for their promotion or API. However online webinars or conferences are very good platform to exchange or enhance the knowledge but as its number is increasing there is doubt whether organisation of such activities will meet its objectives or not.

This session was Compeered by Dr Sachin Bhumbe and Dr Ram Bhise delivered vote of thanks.

At Tertiary level ELT is better as there are qualified teachers but not fully satisfactory.
